In Brief

Billy X Jennings as photographed by Suzun Lamaina

Pan y Café

The Black Panthers in portraits and stories emerge from the Pan y Café, a space where chemistry becomes alchemy.

Inside

- Spring 2017
- Exhibits
- Library Diversity Initiative
- Alumni
- Special Collections

Pan y Café

The Black Panthers in portraits and stories emerge from the Pan y Café, a space where chemistry becomes alchemy.

The Path of Social Justice

Dr. Judy K. Sakaki, President of Sonoma State University, introduced the panel and guests to a historic panel discussion on the civil rights movement, featuring former founders and foot soldiers of the Black Panther Party. Each month, Pan y Café has a different theme.

Library Diversity Initiative

The Path of Social Justice

Dr. Judy K. Sakaki, President of Sonoma State University, introduced the panel and guests to a historic panel discussion on the civil rights movement, featuring former founders and foot soldiers of the Black Panther Party. Each month, Pan y Café has a different theme.

Library Diversity Initiative

The Path of Social Justice

Dr. Judy K. Sakaki, President of Sonoma State University, introduced the panel and guests to a historic panel discussion on the civil rights movement, featuring former founders and foot soldiers of the Black Panther Party. Each month, Pan y Café has a different theme.

Library Diversity Initiative

The Path of Social Justice

Dr. Judy K. Sakaki, President of Sonoma State University, introduced the panel and guests to a historic panel discussion on the civil rights movement, featuring former founders and foot soldiers of the Black Panther Party. Each month, Pan y Café has a different theme.

Library Diversity Initiative

The Path of Social Justice

Dr. Judy K. Sakaki, President of Sonoma State University, introduced the panel and guests to a historic panel discussion on the civil rights movement, featuring former founders and foot soldiers of the Black Panther Party. Each month, Pan y Café has a different theme.
The Issue

The University's recent exhibit entitled Amache: We Remember is a special moment, offering insight into the life of a community and the richness of their experience.

We have heard Dr. Judy Sakaki, the Director of the Anthropological Studies Center, share her memories of working with the Amache community members. Her words about the Amache community and the importance of their exhibit are reminiscent of the many stories that people share about their experiences with the University.

The exhibit also highlights the historical significance of the Amache community, whose contributions have been essential to the University's success.

Special Collections

The exhibit at the Sonoma State University Library is a series of photographs that document the University's history and the contributions of its community members.

The exhibit features photographs of the Amache community, the University, and the surrounding area. These images provide a glimpse into the lives of the community members and their contributions to the University.

C.O.A.S.T.

How it kept the California Coast clear

The University of California, Sonoma State University, formed in 1968 to preserve public coastal access to the California coastline and the legislative efforts over the development of the Sea Ranch community.

The University of California is home to a special collection of the California Coastal Commission. To learn more about the C.O.A.S.T. Scrapbook Collection, visit the Online Archive of California at www.oarc.berkeley.edu.